Vogt Dropping Plea Bargaining in Unprecedented Action

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON

In a move apparently unprecedented in New York State history, the Ulster County District Attorney's office will no longer engage in plea bargaining in county court cases, the Freeman has learned.

Informed of the action by reliable sources, the Freeman questioned District Attorney Francis J. Vogt about the move which is certain to be controversial, as well as historic.

"There will be no plea bargaining whatsoever in respect to indictments returned after Jan. 1 (1975)," Vogt said, while confirming the reports.

"Plea bargaining has always been regarded as a necessary evil. I have never been convinced it's so necessary in this county, and I'm going to find out," Vogt said.

Plea bargaining is action in criminal cases which generally results in a guilty plea by a defendant to a lesser charge than that which he originally faced, or to only one charge in an indictment containing several charges.

The new policy will only apply to cases in county court, Vogt said, explaining that he intends to try doing without plea bargaining "for at least one year."

Under the new policy, defendants will either have to enter guilty pleas to entire indictments or go to trial.

Vogt conceded that the elimination of plea bargaining—certain to be lauded by those wanting tougher action against criminals and to cause a furor among defense attorneys—may give rise to problems, particularly in regard to court congestion.

Special

"I think however, that if the administrative judge of this (judicial) district will provide us with the necessary judges that this congestion will not necessarily have to happen," the district attorney added. He explained that supreme court judges or surrogate judges can be assigned to handle criminal cases in addition to county court judges.

"It seems to me more important to determine an issue of innocence or guilt where a man's liberty hangs in the balance than to decide who is at fault in an auto accident where only money changes hands," he said. "Civil work is important, but I think criminal work should take precedence."

"I've got the personnel to try the cases, so all we need is help from the judiciary," Vogt added.

The new policy will almost undoubtedly cost the taxpayers more. "Every trial costs the taxpayers," Vogt said. But he added that there may also be very positive aspects.

"I've always felt that diligent prosecution acts as a very strong deterrent," he said. "I think it will have a very healthy affect on crime prevention."

Asked why any alleged criminals would choose to plead guilty under the new policy when they'd apparently have nothing to lose by going to trial, Vogt said, "a defendant might prefer to plead guilty to keep all the salient facts from the judge and the public in the hope it would result in a lighter sentence." He explained that while at a trial all the "sordid facts" are brought out, in an indictment there is just "a cold recital of the violation of statute."

Vogt said that in cases where prior commitments have been made as to plea bargaining, the commitments will be kept.

"As far as I know this (the elimination of plea bargaining) has never been attempted in a county this size, or any county in this state," Vogt told the Freeman.

The district attorney said the elimination of plea bargaining might—or might not—result in heavier sentences. Asked why he had decided to institute the new policy, he said, "I'm doing this really, I suppose because I think the public should know exactly what a particular defendant did."

Snow Storm, Tornadoes Rip Nation

By United Press International

An icy chill lingered over the nation's snow-clogged midsection today as a raging winter storm which left more than a score of persons dead in a twoday Midwest rampage moved on to torment the southland.

Tornadoes raked Georgia and Florida, adding to the death toll.

At least 29 persons died in the weekend one-two punch of blizzards and tornadoes.

One twister roared through Panama City, Fla., ripping through a row of house trailers and homes and leaving a 1-week-old girl dead and three other persons injured. The tornado damaged several house trailers and homes, downed power lines and overturned a two-ton truck.

Other tornadoes buzzed nine southwestern Georgia counties, injuring six persons and causing considerable damage.

Although New York City witnessed a rare snowfall today, and severe storm warnings were issued for the Capital District, the Mid-Hudson Valley has had the good fortune to miss the brunt of the storm. Freezing rain covered the area overnight, and flurries were expected throughout the day, but accumulation was expected to be minimal.

But despite the area's good luck, traveling was treacherous enough this morning to cancel classes at Ontario Central School, and to delay classes for an hour in Kingston and Saugerties. Police reported several storm related accidents, and advised driving caution throughout the day and evening.

The snowstorm battered the Midwest during the weekend and piled up 10-foot snowdrifts. It swept across the South and the Ohio Valley Sunday and early today, dumping a fiveinch blanket of snow from Texas to Mississippi and piling up eight to nine inches of snow in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Snow swirled over the Appalachians early today and heavy snow warnings were posted for a 200-mile wide area from Tennessee to southern Vermont. Travelers' warnings were posted from southern Indiana through most of Tennessee and for portions of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Three persons were killed Sunday when a single-engine private plane crashed near Paintsville, Ky., during a snowstorm. The plane was en route from Augusta, Ga., to Springfield, Ohio.

The bodies of two men were found in Iowa farm fields Sunday—victims of the raging storm and plummeting temperatures. One died while apparently attempting to walk from his stranded car to a farmhouse near Lohrville. The other was a snowmobiler who apparently became lost while helping stranded motorists and died of exposure. Iowa's toll of storm-related deaths stood at 10.

The bodies of a mother and her 7-year-old son were found near their snowmobile just outside of Willmar, Minn., bringing Minnesota's storm death toll to six.

Serious Economic Situation Chief Problem for 94th Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The 94th Congress convenes Tuesday with chances of a second honeymoon with the Ford administration dimmed by problems that can threaten any marriage: lack of work and money.

The new Congress has to deal with worst economic situation since World War II, with unemployment soaring, sales and profits of some major industries shrinking, and inflation continuing to eat away at the dollar. The energy shortage also looms over the economic problems.

The gloom has prompted Democrats, strengthened by 75 predominantly liberal freshmen, to reverse a tradition of slow legislative starts. They plan to ram through emergency relief for the staggering economy in the form of an immediate tax cut.

Whether or not President Ford will get the second honeymoon he proposed shortly after he took office last August will become more clear Wednesday when Ford plans to outline his economic and energy programs in his State of the Union address.

Both Ford and the Democrats are expected to recommend tax cuts, but the sizes are likely to differ.

they lose both, the margin would be 6139.

The leadership in both houses will be unchanged,

Tax Cuts Certain To Be Introduced

Congress appeared ready to step into the energy situation by giving Ford standby powers to ration gas and force major utilities and industries to switch to coal from scarcer fuels. Ford would like to de-regulate natural gas at the wellhead.

The new House breaks down to 291 Democrats and 144 Republicans. The new liberal members may mark a shift to the left in the House, displacing the Senate's role as a pioneer of new legislation.

In the Senate, Democrats would hold a commanding 63-37 edge if disputed races in New Hampshire and Oklahoma are ruled in their favor. If although there may be several changes in House committee chairmanships. The only doubtful post is a minor one, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference. The election pits liberal Jacob K. Javits of New York against conservative Carl Curtis of Nebraska.

The administration and Congress were almost certain to quarrel over increasing aid to South Vietnam, again threatened by invasions from the North. Ford is reportedly considering a request for some $300 million or more in emergency military aid for the Saigon government.

Many congressmen are opposed to any program which even hints at renewed U.S. involvement in the war.

A companion fight could result if the Pentagon asks for a record budget in the face of a $36 billion deficit and pressing economic needs.

Other significant action expected this session:

—Enactment of a national health insurance program, which has been waiting in the wings for passage for two years.

—Major investigations of CIA spending and surveillance, long a taboo subject on security grounds.

—Hearings on the Vladivostok nuclear arms agreement reached by President Ford with Soviet Communist Leader Leonid Brezhnev, and possibly a renewed attempt to cut off arms aid to Turkey.

Administration sources agree there will be some kind of tax cut—perhaps a one-time 10 per cent rebate on 1974 income taxes and a reduction worth $10 to $15 billion in 1975.

CIA Investigative Panel Opens Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller today convened an eightmember administration panel which he promised would "get to the bottom" of charges that the CIA illegally spied on citizens inside the United States.

The panel set aside six hours for its first meeting, during which it planned to take testimony from CIA Director William E. Colby, former director Richard M. Helms and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was expected to attend the meeting, was not present at the start.

"This commission has one objective—we're going to get to the bottom of this problem," Rockefeller said in brief remarks after he and the other commission members were sworn in. "We're going to get all of the facts."

Rockefeller said the panel had been directed by President Ford to determine whether the CIA "has exceeded its statutory authority" in domestic spying.

"This committee will find the answer," he said.

He said the panel also will determine if the "present safeguards are adequate" to prevent the CIA from participating in domestic spying and "if not, we will recommend changes."

But he added, "We must have an intelligence capability ... it is essential to our freedom."

Colby was the first witness and was scheduled to be before the panel more than three hours. Schlesinger and Helms each were to be given one hour.

Meanwhile, Colby admitted that the CIA may have conducted operations that "shouldn't have happened," Newsweek reported Sunday.

"In the 25 years' history of this agency," Colby told Newsweek, "various things have happened that maybe shouldn't have happened, you know, but they're exceptional, few and far between."

Other witnesses expected to appear at today's six-hour session include former CIA directors Richard Helms and James A. Schlesinger—now defense secretary—and possibly Kissinger.

"This is not going to be a whitewash, the vice president is very concerned about that," a spokesman said. "But we hope at the same time the commission will restore some credibility and confidence in the CIA."

Court Denies Liddy Continued Bail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today denied continued bail to G. Gordon Liddy, one of the seven original Watergate defendants, pending disposition of his appeal.

Liddy, the only one of the seven who never cooperated with prosecutors, was in prison until Oct. 15, 1974, when he was released on $5,000 bond by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell. Later the U.S. Court of Appeals here upheld the conviction.

It is up to the government whether Liddy will be returned to jail.

Liddy was sentenced to from six and two-thirds to 20 years in prison and fined $40,000 after being convicted of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping.

Urge Protection of Catskill Forests

STAMFORD
Although the Catskill Region's 2.5 million acres of hardwood forests appear virtually indestructible, a team of experts has recommended that some specific steps be taken to guarantee the survival of the region's forest resources.

In a report prepared for the Catskill Study Commission, the Applied Forestry Research Institute (a branch of the college of Environmental Science and Forestry in Syracuse) stated that the best way to protect the region's forests is to apply modern forestry techniques and to have professional foresters work closely with loggers and landowners.

Other points raised in the study report included:

- Property taxes on forest and related open space lands should reflect more clearly the owner's objective of timber growing. If the forest land is to be preserved, according to the report, there must be an equitable system of taxation based on land productivity.

- Improvement or development of secondary wood using industries that use the lumber produced by the region's sawmills.

- More diversified and year-round recreational activities appropriate for the forest areas.

The report stressed the importance of the forests to the region's economy. It notes that the annual harvest of lumber in this region has reached the equivalent of 74 million board feet of logs and 16,000 cords of plywood.

There are 45 major sawmills and 38 related manufacturing plants that depend on the region's forest reserves, and some 20 per cent of all wood harvested in New York State comes from the Catskill Mountains.

In addition, the lumber industry provides some 1,700 jobs in this region, an annual payroll of $13 million, and more than $55 million in manufactured products.

But despite the large annual harvests of lumber from the Catskill region, the report noted that the growth of new trees actually exceeds the number that are removed every year.

The study team also found that 64 per cent of the region's land is covered by forest, and that over 2.2 million acres of forested land is privately owned.

Private ownership includes farmer, business people, retirees and housewives. Roughly half the private owners use their forest land for some form of recreation.

The Catskill Study Commission will consider this, and other, reports before making its final recommendations to the state legislature on steps that should be taken to improve the quality of life in the Catskill region. That final report is due in March.

Hinchey on Four Committees

ALBANY
Although he didn't get all the committee assignments he asked for — and in fact few freshmen Assemblymen do — Maurice Hinchey said he was "very happy" about being named to the Agriculture, Banks, Environmental Conservation and Labor Committees of the State Assembly.

"I feel very good about my committee assignments," Hinchey told the Freeman. "I'm very happy about it."

Hinchey had asked for assignment to the Ways and Means Committee, perhaps the most powerful committee in the Assembly, but says reflectively, "As a freshman Assemblyman I realized there was little real chance of that happening."

Hinchey is, however, the only freshman on the Banks Committee, one of the major committees in the Assembly and as Hinchey sees it a committee that will have growing influence over the lives of New Yorkers in the immediate future.

"I feel some important policy will be made in the area of banks. Not only the regulation of banks but of the whole securities industry," he said.

George A. Cincotta of Brooklyn, a 15-year member of the Assembly, is chairman of the Banks Committee.

Hinchey feels his membership on the Environmental Conservation Committee, which oversees the Department of Environmental Conservation, will have immediate impact on his district.

Hinchey noted that environmental conservation decisions during the next few years would be crucial "in the whole area of land use planning in the Catskills."

Herbert A. Posner of Queens, an eight-year member of the Assembly, is chairman of the Environmental Conservation Committee.

Agriculture is still an important industry in Ulster County and Hinchey sees significant parallels between the work of that committee and the Environmental Conservation Committee. "We have some of the best corn and apple country in the state," Hinchey said, "and indications are the people of Ulster County want to keep it that way."

Daniel Walsh of Cattaraugus County, elected to the Assembly in 1972, is chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

The Labor Committee covers the whole range of workmen's rights, unemployment, benefits, etc. and Hinchey feels it is important that Ulster County, with an unemployment rate that could conceivably reach ten per cent this year, have a representative with direct access to the committee making key decisions in that area.

Seymour Posner (no relation to Herbert Posner), of the Bronx, a ten-year member of the Assembly, is chairman of the Labor Committee.

Hinchey also announced his support of rule changes in the Assembly that would open up the committee process to public scrutiny.

Terming the new rules "a breath of fresh air," Hinchey said they would provide for open committee hearings, publication of committee votes within 24 hours and action on all bills at the sponsor's request.

"Some people thought we were making campaign promises we couldn't possibly keep," Hinchey said. "They know better now."

Police Return In Shandaken

ALLABEN
The Town of Shandaken constabulary is back to its full complement of six men, as of Saturday's town board meeting.

Brian Kelly, one of those officers who resigned several months ago with the en masse exit of the force, asked that his resignation be withdrawn. He was re-hired by the board.

Much time was spent on several aspects of assessments. The 12 cases of litigation against the Town of Shandaken on recent assessments that the Board of Assessment Review has turned down have necessitated the hiring of Kingston attorney

Extension Discussed

PORT EWEN
The Esopus Town Board met in special session Friday night to discuss with builders extension of the Port Ewen Water District southward to their apartment complex at Esopus Lake.

Supervisor George Freer said that several representatives of Aero Lake Builders Inc. met with the board. They explained they are currently refinancing (about $1.3 million) the remaining portion of the first phase of the project.

The Esopus board discharged a $300,000 bond posted by the builders to guarantee expenses incurred by the town in extending the Port Ewen Water District to the building site. The value of buildings already completed is enough to cover the town's expenses, Freer said, noting that most of the first 152 units of the 600-unit, three-phase project are nearing completion.

Builders hope to have the first phase completed by spring, Freer said. They are currently trying to get approval for a temporary sewage disposal system that would care for the sanitary needs of the development until the Port Ewen Sewer District is completed.

Ziegler Raps Bureaucrats Over Treatment Being Given Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richard Nixon is a "beaten man," harried by vindictive bureaucrats and in effect locked in a cell, a political prisoner and exile on his estate at San Clemente, Ronald Ziegler says.

"What is happening to Richard Nixon as a human being is very serious" because of the way he has been treated since resigning the presidency, said Ziegler, Nixon's top aide.

"The fact that he has survived this period to me is remarkable."

Ziegler who was closer to Nixon than any other assistant in the final days of his presidency and has been his chief aide since, gave his first lengthy, public interview to the Los Angeles Times. It was printed Sunday.

Ziegler bitterly criticized the government for its treatment of Nixon, especially financially, and the charges that Nixon escaped punishment for Watergate, while his top assistants face, or have already served, prison terms.

"He resigned in disgrace. He is certainly a beaten man," Ziegler said.

"What severity of penalty does this society want from a leader? If society wants to put him in a cell, there is a cell out there," Ziegler said, pointing toward Nixon's estate.

"Have you seen the size of his office? What more is wanted?"

"It's the first American political exile — self imposed, certainly self imposed — but certainly exile. You only have to be here to sense it is exile — the abandonment by friends, the isolation, the vindictiveness of some in Washington, including some in Congress and some in the Ford White House," Ziegler said.

However, Ziegler made a point of saying that he does not think that President Ford himself has been "vindictive" or knows how Ford's aides treat Nixon.

Ziegler was particularly annoyed at the statement by his successor, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, that the government will bill Nixon $8,440 for half of his last flight on Air Force One the day he resigned.

Nessen announced last week that since Nixon ceased to be president somewhere over Jefferson City, Mo., when Ford took the presidential oath, Nixon forfeited his right to presidential transportation at that instant, and would have to pay for the remainder of the flight to California.

"That's absurd," Ziegler said. "It is unbelievable."

"He was president when he left Washington. What was he supposed to do — alight in Jefferson City and make his way out here by train?"

Ziegler complained that Ford aides will not release Nixon's personal belongings, including souvenirs and mementos, nor even forward mail.

"Richard Nixon has to pay lawyers to get his mail sent out," Ziegler said.

Ziegler said he personally had been embarrassed because the White House did not forward his mail, including a credit card bill. He didn't pay the bill because he never received it, and the next time he tried to use the credit card he was told it had been canceled.

IRS Chief Says Ex-President Owes $100 Thousand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief of the Internal Revenue Service says Richard M. Nixon still owes over $100,000 in back taxes that he promised to pay before resigning as President.

Interviewed Sunday on UPI's Washington Window broadcast, IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander also said a record number of Americans will get income tax refunds this year.

Alexander said that Nixon had failed to pay at least part of the tax owed on his 1969 income.

"As you know, we found a deficiency of interest and negligence penalties in the aggregate amount of $432,787.13. Some of that, relating to the year 1969, has not yet been paid, according to my knowledge," Alexander said.

Nixon is not legally liable for the 1969 tax payments because they were discovered only last April, after the three-year statute of limitations had run out. A congressional subcommittee calculated that Nixon owed $171,055 while an IRS estimate was slightly less.

But Nixon promised at that time — and reaffirmed his promise last June — to pay taxes owed from 1969-72. Nixon has paid his back taxes from 1970. Much of the taxes came because the IRS disallowed a deduction he claimed for donating his vice presidential papers to the Archives.

Alexander said the Nixon case has prompted the IRS to review tax returns of every public official with an annual salary of more than $50,000. An audit could follow.

The review will include the tax returns of President Ford, Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, House Speaker Carl Albert and Cabinet members.

Alexander said a record 66 million taxpayers will get refunds averaging $395. That figure will jump to $435 if a tentatively planned 10 per cent tax rebate is proposed by President Ford and adopted by Congress.

Alexander attributed the record refunds to a sluggish economy and industrial layoffs. Because of the layoffs, many workers will earn less money than the figure used to determine payroll tax deductions.

'Didn't Want to Get Involved'

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Barbaral Wilson, 46, had been trapped with an injured leg for four days at the bottom of an isolated canyon after her car went off a mountain road, when the man appeared, walking his dog.

He was strolling along 500 feet above her, on the road where she lost control of her auto Jan. 6.

She had no food or water, and only the floor mats from her car for shelter from the mountain cold.

"I yelled to him and he said he didn't want to get involved and walked away," Mrs. Wilson told Highway Patrolman Al Goldberg, who rescued her from the canyon Sunday, after she had been trapped six days.

"He said anyone who would drive on that road deserved whatever they got," she said.

Mrs. Wilson, of Ventura, "was conscious and alert and in amazing condition when we got to her," Goldberg said Sunday.

"She was waving her arms at us and yelling when we arrived. She was talking quite a bit and laughing by the time we got her to the hospital."

Dr. Richard Ashby of Community Memorial Hospital here described her condition as "amazingly good under the circumstances. It's really remarkable."

It was about noon Monday when Mrs. Wilson's car went off the twisting mountain road through the Los Padres National Forest between Ojai and Maricopa.

The auto slid 150 feet down the shale canyon wall. Mrs. Wilson, afraid the car would tumble farther, got out and crawled and slid the rest of the way to the bottom of the 500-foot canyon.

No one knew she was there. The road carries little traffic. Passing motorists could not see a woman at the bottom of a chaparral forest canyon.

The temperature dropped into the 30s at night in this area for the past week, and there have been dustings of snow at that altitude.

She had a large gash on her right knee that needed minor surgery, Ashby said. Between the injury and the steep canyon wall, she could not get out.

She had on an ankle length skirt of heavy wool, and had pulled the floor mats from the auto. She slept under them, she told Goldberg.

Four teen-age boys, walking along the edge of the road collecting bottles and target shooting, heard her shouts Sunday and notified the highway patrol.

Bazooka Fired

PARIS (UPI) — A group of attackers opened fire with a bazooka on an El Al Israeli Jetliner parked at Orly airfield today but the shell hit a Yugoslav jetliner instead.

Police said said that according to first indications several persons were injured aboard the Yugoslav plane.

"The attackers opened fire with a bazooka from a car which they drove past the runway on which the Israeli plane was located," a police official said.

He said the shell missed the aircraft, which is usually under special guard on French airfields, and hit the Yugoslav airliner parked nearby.

Police said the attackers who managed to sneak onto the runways through police and customs services, have not been identified, and apparently managed to escape.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

The executive editor of a well-known New York subsidy publishing firm will be in the area in Mid February. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books, etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

Health Insurance Drive

A revitalized push for a federally financed national health insurance program is in prospect as the new Congress gears up for its first session. One of the most promising initiatives comes from the Committee for National Health Insurance. A wide-ranging plan formulated by this citizens' organization is to be introduced simultaneously in both houses.

Numerous other plans also will be in the hopper, but this one is of particular interest because of its comprehensive nature. Payments would be made from a health security trust fund not only for all hospital and physicians' services but also for such health needs as hearing aids, glasses, and dental services — the latter for children at first, and in time for everyone. Locally developed social care services for the chronically ill and the aged also would be supported by federal grants.

As with every health insurance bill, there are two pressing questions: How much would it cost? Where would the money come from? The Committee for National Health Insurance offers no estimate as to the total cost. However, it proposes to finance the program half by earmarked taxes on earned and unearned income, and half out of general revenues. This would have advantages over relying solely on a method patterned after Social Security.

There have been too many past disappointments to permit much optimism at this juncture. One can take heart, though, from the fact that last November's election results make enactment of a comprehensive national health insurance program more likely than last year or the year before.

Controlled Poppy Crops

The opium poppy has been cast in a devil's role in recent years. Small wonder, since this plant yields the raw material for heroin.

Pain-killing drugs also are derived from opium, however. An editorial in the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine properly raises the question whether reliance on foreign opium makes an adequate supply of such drugs uncertain. The writer of the editorial, Dr. Leonard B. Greentree of Columbus, Ohio, proposes growing opium poppies in this country to avert a possible shortage.

We endorse the idea, but with one important reservation. The presence of poppy fields would inevitably tempt people to grow their own and manufacture heroin for the black market. If opium poppy cultivation is undertaken, it should be done under closely supervised conditions.

No. 7 on the List

For some years the Gallup Poll has annually inquired of Americans: "What man that you have heard or read about, living today in any part of the world, do you admire the most?" The results are often curious, giving rise to wonderment about the public's standards of judgment.

This year's results seem more curious than ever. For if we are to believe that the poll results accurately reflect popular opinion, then a great number of Americans still think Richard M. Nixon is a fine fellow. He stands seventh on the list of most admired men.

This though that same Richard M. Nixon, while president of the United States, conspired to obstruct justice, repeatedly lied to the people, and in other ways demeaned his high office — which he was at last forced to abdicate in disgrace. Some choice for the man "you admire the most!"

By JACK ANDERSON

With Les Whitten
WASHINGTON — We have seen enough of the seamy side of life to harden us to shock. But the letters that are smuggled to us from torture victims always leaves us shaken.

Priests who have been permitted inside the prisons of Brazil have brought us, at great personal risk, evidence of the inhumanity of the Brazilian military regime.

Washington Merry-Go-Round Torturing Tale of Latin Countries

Friends and relatives have smuggled out letters from Cuban political prisoners, describing the horrors of Fidel Castro's concentration camps. We have spoken to an American girl, a gentle art teacher, who had been tortured by the Chilean military junta.

The latest letters have been delivered to us by friends of Olga Talamante, a 25-year-old U.S. citizen, who has been beaten and tortured with electric shock at a federal police station in the provincial town of Azui, Argentina. Her letters to her farm worker-parents and former school friends in California are graphic.

"We spent four days and four nights which were pure hell," she related. "They beat the hell out of us. ... There was no difference between day and night, as our heads were covered with coarse cloth bags and we weren't allowed to sleep.

"We were constantly interrogated and, of course, 'persuaded' with a special electric gadget to talk. The combination of physical punishment and psychological stress is something they've practiced for a long time, because they are really good at it.

"But not good enough!" she wrote in an aside from her cell.

"It's impossible to describe everything we went through, but it is very real. To think," she wrote, "that many other people have gone through it (torture) and have even died of it gives one a different dimension on one's own situation."

Talamante, who is in a cell with five women, indicated they are now being treated well and "have everything we need except dear freedom."

The American girl was arrested with a dozen Argentines just a few days after a state of siege was declared in Argentina. Police reports charge that the arrest site contained arms and subversive materials, which could bring a minimum three years' prison sentence under the sweeping new laws.

A former honor student at the University of California in Santa Cruz, Talamante journeyed to Argentina in August 1973 with money earned picking gar garlic. She taught English in Azui and planned to return to the United States on November 24 in time for Thanksgiving.

A friend, Rebecca Estrada, recalls that Talamante was particularly interested in political corruption in CIA-supported military regimes even though "she realized she was getting into heavy stuff."

An Argentine embassy spokesman told our reporters, Rozanne Weissman: "This case cannot be compared to those in Chile because we don't torture people in Argentina" and "we still have our legal procedures in force even during our state of siege."

Even more depressing are letters from Antonio Cuesta Valle, blind and maimed, who, nevertheless, is held by Fidel Castro in brutal Cuban prison. Cuesta asked his friends to bring his story to us, although he expects retaliation when it is printed.

He led a commando raid on Cuba in 1966. His small boat was intercepted by patrol boats and four of his associates were killed in a fierce exchange of gunfire. Cuesta urged the only other survivor, Engenio Zaldivar, that they cheat the firing squad and commit suicide.

They exploded a hand grenade which blew off one of Cuesta's arms, destroyed his eyesight and riddled his body with shrapnel. Yet he miraculously survived. His companion lost the use of one leg.

Now in a special gallery for political prisoners, Cuesta writes of beatings and brutality by the guards, and of the constant "requisas" or searches. The prisoners are stripped naked and chased into the patio by guards who strike them with clubs.

Cuesta also must recruit a fellow prisoner to dress and shave him. As quickly as he becomes dependent upon someone, the guards sadistically move the prisoner and leave Cuesta on his own again.

Yet this blind man with one arm is able to write Spanish poetry and conduct clandestine church services in the prison. He knows the guards will punish him when the news of this is published, but he wants the world to know.

"I am sure that I will never leave this prison alive," he writes, "and there is nothing anyone can do about it."

Inside Report

Ammo for the Viets

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration has decided to seek desperately needed arms from a hostile Congress for beleaguered South Vietnam based on this secret warning from Ambassador Graham Martin in Saigon: if weapons continue to be rationed at the present parsimonious rate for another three months, the result will be catastrophic.

Thus, policymakers meeting at the State Department decided on an all-out effort for an immediate $300 million in arms. Most critically needed to stem the dangerous through still localized Communist offensive is ammunition, particularly for Saigon's ample supply of big guns. These guns are now starved for shells to fire. Also in critical short supply is aviation fuel, which has partially grounded Saigon's small air force.

These shortages of both ammunition and aviation fuel contributed to Hanoi's conquest of Phuoc Binh city, a provincial capital only 75 miles north of Saigon, in the Communists' most glittering military victory since the 1972 offensive. The latest triumph flowed directly from anti-Saigon animus in Congress; other military disasters could follow.

Seeking military aid for Saigon is a formidable first challenge for President Ford in facing the new Congress, overwhelmingly liberal and Democratic. The difficulty was apparent to the emergency session Tuesday of Mr. Ford's top officials, including Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, CIA director William Colby and Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements. Their decision, concurred in by the President: Mr. Ford himself will take the leading role in persuading Congress.

They were left no choice by Martin's stringent warning that shortages of ammunition and fuel were trapping Saigon's forces in a series of predictable and ugly defeats against the enemy's lavishly-equipped tank brigades.

Martin's message was terse: high battlefield casualties to South Vietnamese troops defending strongpoints, including district capitals in the highlands, were causing severe morale problems.

The first crack at Congress will seek an immediate $300 million appropriation to finance conventional ammunition and fuel from the Pentagon's domestic stocks, both of which are in plentiful supply. The last Congress actually authorized $1 billion for military aid to Saigon but only appropriated $700 million; so, the $300 million sought needs clearance for floor action only by the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, traditionally more friendly toward South Vietnam than the dovish Foreign Affairs and Foreign Relations Committees.

Despite that slender advantage, Mr. Ford's aides have no illusions about the congressional quagmire they are entering with this week's decision to reopen the inflammatory congressional debate over Vietnam. Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, has agreed to help. But other senior Democrats have not yet been contacted for help in an uphill battle in each house. To line up other leaders of both parties, President Ford is planning the usual high-level talks in the White House next week.

At first glance, the prospects for getting the 94th Congress to help South Vietnam help itself seem grim. The freshman liberal Democrats have emerged from an atmosphere of shame and anger over the American role in Vietnam. They have come to Washington to battle recession and inflation, not meddle in the blood feuds of Indochina.

If Saigon is given the means to use its guns and planes, these officials insist, South Vietnam will not be overrun. In three months without help, a final countdown will start with its tragic climax quite predictable. That is the choice President Ford is putting before the 94th congress.

In All, A Great Assignment

It was a smart cocktail party; sophisticated people in groups holding chilled martinis with pinkies in a splint. The gray-haired stranger was cordial: "If you should get to Bermuda, take this note. You and your friends can stay at my house."

Someone said he was a Broadway producer, Dwight Deere Wyman. I was disturbed. As military editor of Collier's magazine, we were not permitted to tell anyone, including wives, where we were going. I consulted my U.S. Navy co-worker, Lieut. Roger Straus, Jr.

"That's where we're going," he said, frowning. "You didn't tell him?" "I never met him before."

"Then he's guessing. Keep the note."

We flew 660 miles from Norfolk to Hamilton. The plane was an old PB-2 with independent bolts, making it sound like an arthritic sprinter. It could do 90 m.p.h. downhill. We were two hours out, sitting in glass blisters with the dimpled sea below, when lost the sun.

"We've turned back," I said. He shook his head. I went forward to ask the pilot. "Yep," he said, above the clanking of the engine nacelles. "The book says our radio must raise the point of arrival and the point of departure. We can get Hamilton, but we can't get Norfolk."

We had a trade-school boy. Two hours later, the radio man said he could raise Norfolk and Hamilton. The co-pilot checked the fuel. We had enough. He turned east again. We foamed the robin's egg blue water of Hamilton 8 hrs., 20 min. after takeoff. Swimmers passed us.

Straus was ranked by the commander who met us in a station wagon. A glance at his Annapolis ring showed he had been passed over twice for promotion. A tough man. He was in charge of Bachelor Officers Quarters.

Roger couldn't tell him. So I said it. "We're staying at the Dwight Deere Wyman estate." "MY 'My orders—," he said huffily. "The hell with your orders." I said softly. "The Pentagon wants me to write this article; we're living off-base."

It was a mansion on top of a black cliff. Far below, blue water thundered white against the rocks. The decor was early rich. Two Portuguese servants went with it. We worked all day; lived all night.

My job was to find out if a newspaper story that Churchill had given the U.S. a naval base underwater was true. For this and other bases, Great Britain got 50 over-age U.S. destroyers.

Admiral Sowell, a sundowner from World War I, was in charge. He showed me a chart of Bermuda. It is a fish hook 19 miles long. An American base along the shank of the hook would isolate Bermudians from each other.

The harbor was too shallow for big U.S. aircraft carriers. A Navy committee decided to dredge a deep channel and place the fill on the shoals, thus building a base and a harbor at little cost.

Roger and I worked every day from 9 to 4. At B.O.Q. the bartender set up four icy stingers apiece at 4:10. This washed the work from our minds and made instant Rover Boys of us.

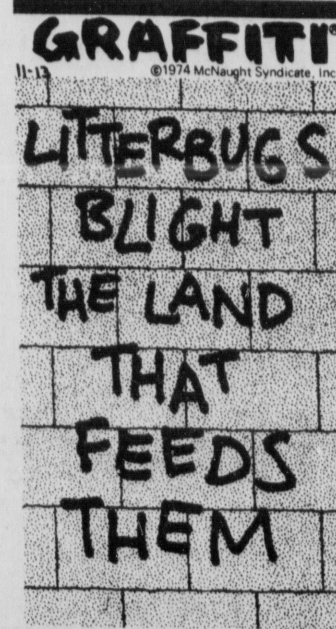

Everybody else had a problem. The admiral had a jeep carrier towing the first captured U-boat into harbor on the second day. "If you write, say or think a word about this," he said, glaring, "I will personally rip your arms from their sockets."

The next day he was perspiring. "What now?" I said. He shrugged. "A squadron of D.E.'s is coming in. We have a lot of reefs outside. One of the skippers is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. If he so much as scrapes his hull, I'll beach him."

The man in charge of the Navy bar was named Siegel. New York type. He was in trouble. An officers' mess and bar is not supposed to show a profit. He had $14,000 surplus and was scared to death that Hitler would surrender before he could give the booze away.

Lieut. Straus and I had peaceful evenings. Young British war widows require sympathetic attention. The stars were like silver balloons. The sea stormed the cliff and fell back. The Capehart music was soft. The Portuguese servants kept the drinks and canapes coming.

It was a tough war assignment for any man. And yet, the best writing I did was not the Bermuda article. The expense account was a gem.

Legislator White Changing Enrollment

MARLBORO
Charging the Ulster County Republican Party with "dictatorial rule," County Legislator Brian R. White (R-Dist. 8) has announced his plans to change his enrollment today to the Democratic Party.

If he does, his Democratic enrollment will not become effective until January 1976, according to the Ulster County Board of Elections. It was pointed out however, that White can run on the Democratic ticket in the fall election if he is nominated by the Democratic Party.

Ulster County's 33-member Legislature is up for election this year.

White said that for the past several years, he has been increasingly concerned with the direction, methods and achievements of the GOP leadership both nationally and locally.

The Marlboro representative who has been on the board seven years, said that because of his concern, he has attempted to effectuate meaningful change with regard to the conduct and operation of the Republican Party in Ulster County in general and the southern portion of the county in particular. White also represents the towns of New Paltz, Plattekill, Lloyd and Gardiner. Under the recently passed reapportionment plan under which all legislators will run in November, White's district will include only Lloyd, Plattekill and Marlboro.

In making announcement of his decision to switch parties, White explained that because of his concern for the direction the GOP, he contacted the Republican leaders in hopes that they would grant him opportunity to express his views. When his requests were "ignored," White accused the GOP of dictatorial rule saying, "this is a blatant attempt to deny free expression and independent views in order to perpetuate a party leadership that is clearly interested in its own self interest."

White said that in order to serve his constituents he must retain and preserve his right to free expression, feeling that the right of dissent is essential to responsive and progressive government. He feels he has been denied this right and that because of his uncompromising position of independence have incurred the direct wrath of the GOP leaders. As a result, he said, it has become increasingly difficult for him to provide effective representation for his constituents.

Youth Charged in Burglaries

WOODSTOCK
Investigation of burglaries early Sunday at Katz's Delicatessen and Joshua's Cafe in Woodstock resulted in the arrest of Joseph Garcia, 19, of Woodstock on a charge of third degree burglary.

Woodstock constables said food items taken in one of the burglaries and a small amount of cash taken in the other were recovered.

Meanwhile, Woodstock constables charged Pancho Diaz, 22, of Woodstock with criminal possession of stolen property in connection with a Christmas Day burglary at the Bear Cafe.

Both Garcia and Diaz have been confined in the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail pending further court action.

Saugerties Town Police meanwhile arrested two youths on multiple charges in connection with a rash of burglaries over the weekend in the Quarryville area.

Both youths, ages 16 and 17, were charged with third degree burglary, third degree criminal mischief, petit larceny and criminal trespass. The 17-year-old was additionally charged with possession of a controlled substance in the fifth degree, a felony, possession of a weapon in the fourth degree, a misdemeanor, and possession of stolen property in the third degree after a quantity of marijuana and stolen items were allegedly found at his residence during execution of a search warrant.

Neither youth was identified due to possible eligibility for youthful offender status. Both were confined in jail in lieu of bail following the arrests.

KINGSTON
The League of Women Voters (LWV) of Mid-Ulster County will begin its annual finance drive this week.

The LWV is a non-partisan, non-profit organization supported by membership dues and public contributions.

The LWV program includes a wide range of services, including distribution of information about elections, the holding of candidates nights, the publication of This Is Kingston, and local studies such as the two currently in progress, of the towns of Hurley and Olive.

Also studied by the LWV are issues of local, state and national concern. The Mid-Ulster LWV recently began a study of regional water supplies, and is establishing workshops to study the executive branch of the federal government.

A committee which has been studying pre-trial criminal procedures for several months will present a report of their work at the

Win a Big Mac or a small fortune.

Play Stack-A-Mac, the Big Mac game.

Just stop by your local McDonald's and pick up a Stack-A-Mac game card. Gently wash the black rectangle under running water. If the card contains a cash amount, you win that amount. Anything from a very small fortune ($5) to a not so small fortune ($1000). Or, collect all seven Big Mac ingredients on one or more cards and win a Big Mac.

The more you play, the better your chances of winning. So take a break and play Stack-A-Mac today. At McDonald's. Where your dollar gets a break everyday.

Rules:

Make sure you claim your prize because all unclaimed prizes will not be awarded.

Collect a free game ticket each time you visit McDonald's. Store personnel will provide information on redemption of prizes. Open to all members of the entire family except McDonald's employees, its affiliates, subsidiaries, agencies and their immediate family. Void where prohibited by law. Game ends February 23rd, 1975, and winners must claim prizes within 30 days from that date. Winners grant permission to McDonald's to publish their names and photographs without additional compensation.

No purchase necessary.

Costumed Spanish Entertainers to Perform

LA TUNA MUSICAL GROUP

The second annual performance by La Tuna, a musical group from the Major Technical School of Industrial Engineering of Barcelona, Spain, will take place Friday, Jan. 31 at 2:30 p.m. at Kingston High School auditorium. The program is being sponsored by the Spanish Club and the Spanish Honor Society of KHS.

In Spain, where there are students, there is merry-making, singing, eating and loving. And this holds true today as it did centuries ago.

When the first universities were founded in the country in the XIII century, students gathered to sing and make merry and to stare at anything that passed wearing petticoats. Ideal places for these gatherings were the many inns and taverns located all over town. Someone produced a guitar, mandolin or lute... a good voice began the singing... all kept busy eating and drinking... everybody grew happier as the evening went on... a love-sick student suggested serenading his girlfriend to help him recover her favors... and thus THE TUNA WAS BORN.

By the XVI century, the tunos were as much a part of the Spanish university life as were textbooks and teachers. The literature of this period is full of incidents in which the tunos play part, especially when it came to actively participating in every prank that took place in the city. In fact, the XX century tunos wear the same garb worn by their predecessors of the XIV century, including the black cape which was part of the academic gown and, in many cases, the "cover-all" garment that helped the students when making things vanish from outdoor vending establishments.

The tunos then wear velvet doublets, short and puffy breeches, black hose and buckled shoes. The black cape covers this outfit. The colored ribbons pinned to the cape are souvenirs of female admirers, so that the more a tuno wears the more popular he proves to be among his female fans. The sash worn over the chest denotes the school attended by the tunos. Red signifies Law, yellow Medicine, green Civil Engineering. Since these colors are common to all Spanish universities, the coat of arms of each university is embroidered on the sash which, by the way, is part of each academic gown in today's Spanish centers of learning.

The instruments played by a Tuna are normally string instruments. The six members of the Tuna de Industriales play lute, bandurria or mandolin, a requinto or tenor guitar, and a regular Spanish guitar. Then comes the tambourine, which is as needed in a Tuna as the soloist in the group. The first one is usually the clown of the group while the second gives a note of seriousness, if that is at all possible with a group of tunos.

What does Tuna mean...? Surely, it has nothing to do with the mercurial fish we all know. The origin of the word is not very clear. It could come from the Latin "tonus", tune, since there are many words in Spanish derived from that Latin root. What we do know is that the word "Tuno" — mischievous fellow — is intimately related to the word "Tuna". Members of a Tuna are called Tuno, which also means or denotes someone always ready for pranks and laughter. Now whether the tunos were called that because of their inclination to play tricks on everybody, or the group was called Tuna because it was composed of tunos, it is quite unclear. One thing certain though: that today's tunos like to think of themselves as proud successors of their XIV century namesakes.

The music sung by the tunos is always popular; some of the songs are centuries old and have been used to serenade girls all over the country. Once in a while a new song seems to fit perfectly within the Tuna's spirit and is incorporated into the repertoire. Very often words are changed and the tunos manage to collect verses that are used only "for friends and private audiences". A most innocent song can be very easily changed into a double meaning joke. When the tunos announce that they will sing a romantic song, beware, because it might turn out to be a most comical collection of words fitting a most serious music.

A tuno is always ready to serenade a girl, try to steal a kiss from her and then go on to another, like the butterfly that he is supposed to be. Yet today's tunos are very responsible young men who only change personalities when donning the costume of the Tuna.

The complete Tuna de Industriales is made up of from 20-25 students of the "Major Technical School of Industrial Engineering of Barcelona". Six of them are now present in the United States, playing at schools and universities and trying to create a closer friendship among students of Spain and the U.S.A. The rest of the group attends school at the Barcelona university.

Tickets will be available at the door for non-students only.

Reunion Meeting

All members of the Saugerties High School class of 1965 are urged to attend a meeting Thursday to discuss plans for a 10-year reunion. The meeting will be held at Flamingo Restaurant, Route 9W, Saugerties, at 7:30 p.m.

DEAR READERS: A reader asked if I knew the official rules for the kissing game kids played years ago, called "post office."

I didn't, so I asked my readers, and what a variety of answers I received! Since there is nothing in the literature to authenticate the rules, and I know of no living authority (does anyone?), here are some of the responses. Take your pick:

DEAR ABBY: When I was a teen-ager, no party was complete unless we played post office. One person was chosen to be the postmaster, and another was chosen to go into a dark room (usually a closet) which we called "the post office." The postmaster was the go-between.

The person in the closet would whisper a message to the postmaster who came out and announced that there was a postcard for Nancy. Nancy would then go into the closet and what went on in there nobody knew but Nancy and the guy in the closet.

Then the guy came out and Nancy stayed in and told the postmaster that there was a letter for Jimmy. Jimmy went into the closet, and what went on there nobody knew but Nancy and Jimmy. A postcard was a quick kiss, a letter was a long kiss. And a special delivery must have been quite a kiss because the guy (or girl) would come out of the closet with his hair mussed up, red in the face and all flushed.

We played this game until everybody in the room got kissed.

DENVER

DEAR DENVER: That's the way I remember it. Today the kids are a little more sophisticated. They play a game called "pony express." It's just like post office, only there's a little more horsing around.

DEAR ABBY: How well I remember post office! It was a lot of fun for the popular, good looking boys, but not for the not-so-good looking. The one time I was called into the "post office," a girl said she had a "letter" for Chub. My heart was all aflutter. She put her arms around me and said, "Oh, I forgot to stamp it." Then she brought her foot down hard on my left foot and crushed two toes.

CHUB MUNGER:

HELENA, MONTANA
DEAR ABBY: I played post office as a child in England. Here's how we played it:

One member of the party would be elected "postmaster." He (or she) would then station himself (herself) in an adjoining room.

Each person remaining would be given a number, let us say one through twenty. Through the door, the postmaster called out a number. Whoever had the number would join him in the other room. If they were of the opposite sex, they would kiss. If not, they would shake hands.

The postmaster would then join the rest of the party, and the one whose number was called took his turn at being postmaster.

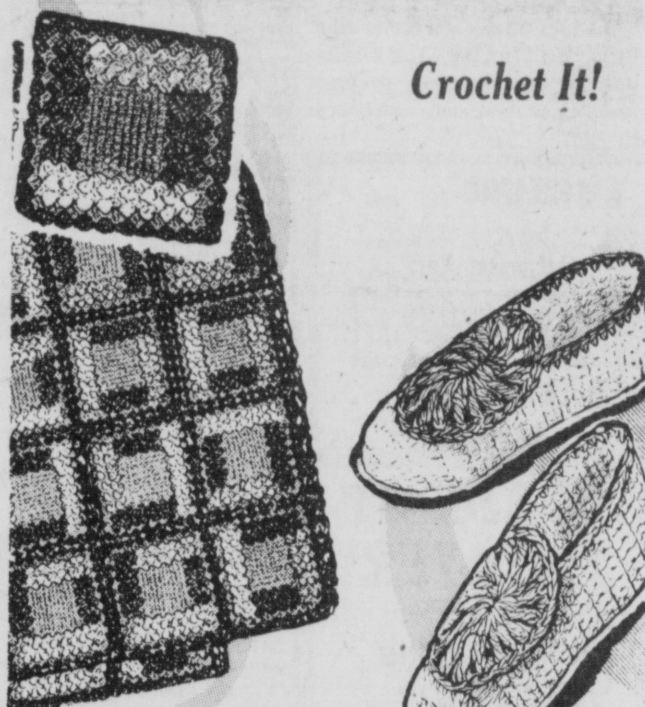

The trick was to try to guess the number of the person you wanted most to kiss.

Senior Citizens of Olive Install Officers for 1975

ALFRED HIGLEY, center, installing officer, presents the gavel to Edward Gille, newly elected president of Olive Senior Citizens. Looking on is Jerry Insera vice president.

Olive Town Justice, General Sessions Court, Alfred Higley installed the 1975 officers of Senior Citizens Club of Olive Thursday afternoon, Jan. 9 at Veteran's Memorial Hall in Ashokan.

Heading the organization for 1975 are: Edward Gille, president; Jerry Insera, vice president; William Mower, treasurer; Dolores Becker, recording secretary; Dorothy Schmidt, corresponding secretary; Frances Gille, financial secretary.

After the installation, Judge Higley described the functions and duties of the office of Town Justice and the types of civil and criminal cases prosecuted in a Town Court. Judge Higley is the first speaker in the winter series Program, "Know Your Town," being offered for the benefit of all residents of Olive. Speakers in town offices will talk on taxes, budget, welfare, recreation, youth programs, law enforcement, First Aid Ambulance Unit, building inspection, and the duties of town councilmen and town clerk.

Following Judge Higley's address, the Olive Seniors celebrated their New Year's party. Tables were decorated with noisemakers, favors, balloons, confetti and greens. Refreshments including a New Year's cake were enjoyed by all. Singing of oldtime favorites also took place with Mrs. Edith Boal at the piano.

Dr. Frank Marlow, Ontario Schools superintendent, will address the Olive Seniors Thursday, Jan. 16. He will describe Ontario's programs and plans for 1975.

Educational Course to Start Tuesday

The fifth in a series of eight continuing education courses for professionals will be held at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday, January 14 from 8 a. m. to noon in the auditorium of Sadler Hall.

Speaker for CSA Luncheon

Michael K. Wood, assistant director for Administration of Ulster County Mental Health Services, will address the luncheon meeting of the Ulster County Council of Social Agencies next Tuesday, Jan. 14, at noon at Holiday Inn. Wood is expected to discuss the recent merger of the Ulster County Drug Commission into the Ulster County Mental Health Services and the benefits anticipated from this move.

Wood is a graduate of Ithaca College with a BS in Administration. He was trained and worked as a pharmacist in the U.S. Army for six years, including service in Vietnam from 1966 to 1967. He then worked for the NYS Department of Mental Hygiene at Hudson River State Hospital (now Hudson River Psychiatric Center) as an Occupational Instructor from 1967 to 1969. In 1969, he joined the NYS Drug Abuse Control Commission as a Narcotics Rehabilitation Counselor. When he returned to Ulster County in 1972, Wood was a Senior Rehabilitation Counselor at the Woodbourne Center in Woodbourne, N.Y. From January 1972 to December 1974, Wood was the administrative director of the Ulster County Drug Commission.

Program Five, entitled "The Psychiatric Unit in a Community Hospital," will open with remarks by Mrs. Elizabeth Mastrocinque, RN, In-Service Education Instructor, St. Francis Hospital.

Following Mrs. Mastrocinque's remarks, Dr. Jerome Goodman, Administrative Director of the Department of Psychology, will introduce panel members who will discuss the role of the psychiatric unit in a general hospital. Members are Dr. Prema Agrawal, Psychiatrist; Edward Nishball, Psychologist; Henrietta Gunderud, Registered Occupational Therapist; Carol Onderdonk, Psychiatric Social Worker; and Gail Woinoski, RN, Head Nurse, Psychiatric Unit. Dr. Goodman will serve as Panel Moderator.

Following the panel discussion, the audience will break into smaller groups, each conducted by a member of the panel.

The meeting will conclude with a question and answer period.

For further details about this and future programs, interested persons should contact Mrs. Mastrocinque, In-Service Education, Nursing Department, St. Francis Hospital.

Gold Price Rises

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The price of gold rose today to open at its highest level since Jan. 2. The U.S. dollar declined in Paris and Brussels but advanced marginally on most other exchanges.

Bullion gained $5 over the weekend in Zurich to open at $182 an ounce.

In London, dealers marked the metal up $3.50 — from Friday's $177.50 close to $181 at today's opening.

At the morning price fixing, London dealers set the price at $180 an ounce.

This was still well below the $200 an ounce level reached briefly in December before an expected New Year's gold rush with the lifting of a 41-year U.S. ban on private ownership.

Failure of the gold rush to materialize pushed the price as low as $169 an ounce.

The dollar opened unchanged in London at $2.3525 to the pound.

It advanced in Frankfurt from 2.38 to 2.381 German marks, and in Zurich from 2.5575 to 2.565 Swiss francs.

In Paris, the U.S. currency declined from 4.393 to 4.385 French francs, and in Brussels it went down from 36.05 to 35.959 Belgian francs.

Steelers' Defense Stifled Vikings in Super IX

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — "Whatever it takes," has been Pittsburgh Steeler coach Chuck Noll's season-long reply when asked how his team won its games.

Sunday, at chilly and windblown Tulane Stadium, it took a stifling defense combined with just enough offense to give the Steelers their first Super Bowl championship with a 16-6 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

"I'm really proud of this football team," Noll said. "We came in with the idea of getting the job done and let nothing stand in our way. It's especially fitting that in a championship game our defense shutout the champions of the National Football Conference. I can't think of anything more fitting."

The Steeler defense, which allowed Oakland only 29 yards rushing in the American Football Conference championship game two weeks earlier, was even more impressive against Minnesota, permitting the Vikings a Super Bowl record low of just 17 yards on the ground. The previous low of 67 yards was set by Minnesota in its 23-7 loss to Kansas City in 1970.

"I think that our front four won the game, they were just outstanding," said Pittsburgh linebacker Jack Ham, who along with each of his teammates earned $15,000 for the win while the Vikings got $7,500 each.

The front four of Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes, L.C. Greenwood and Dwight White, which averages just 26 years of age, in addition to stopping the Vikings' running attack, also harassed quarterback Fran Tarkenton. They blocked four of his passes, intercepted another and pounced on him in the end zone for a safety after a fumbled handoff for the only scoring in a defense-dominated first half.

White was hospitalized for most of last week with a viral infection and missed all six Pittsburgh workouts here but, was determined to not only play but also to start.

"White is a good indication of the attitude of this team," Noll said. "He just wouldn't be denied. The doctor told me there was no way he could play after releasing him from the hospital Saturday but Dwight just said, 'I'm gonna play.'"

"I felt like I could play but I didn't know just how long," White said. "I just got out of the hospital yesterday afternoon and I felt bad just walking around, let alone playing football. It turned out I had viral pneumonia and you can't be cured that quick. I lost 18 pounds and weighed 237 going into the game. I probably lost some more in the game."

"They are very aggressive and got good penetration," said the 14-year veteran Tarkenton of the Steeler front four. "I don't think I've had two passes blocked on me since I've been in the league. They were the best team, they deserved to win, we didn't."

"The best thing we did all day was to keep Tarkenton from throwing when he wanted to," Greene said. "Even in my wildest dreams I didn't think I'd get as big a charge out of winning the Super Bowl as I have. Winning it is a lot bigger than I thought it would be."

Almost overshadowed by the Steeler defense was the performance of running back Franco Harris who rushed for a Super Bowl record 158 yards and also scored the club's first touchdown on a nine-yard run. The TD came only four plays after special team member Marv Kellum recovered Bill Brown's fumble of the second half kickoff on the Minnesota 30-yard line.

After Rocky Bleier was stopped for no gain, Harris scooted the left side for 24 yards. He was thrown for a three-yard loss on the next play but then got the ball again and rambled around the left side for the touchdown.

"I had a head cold, but, you know, you can't let a cold stop you," said Harris who was voted the game's most valuable player and will receive an automobile for his efforts. "They say there's no cure for a cold, so I wasn't looking for one."

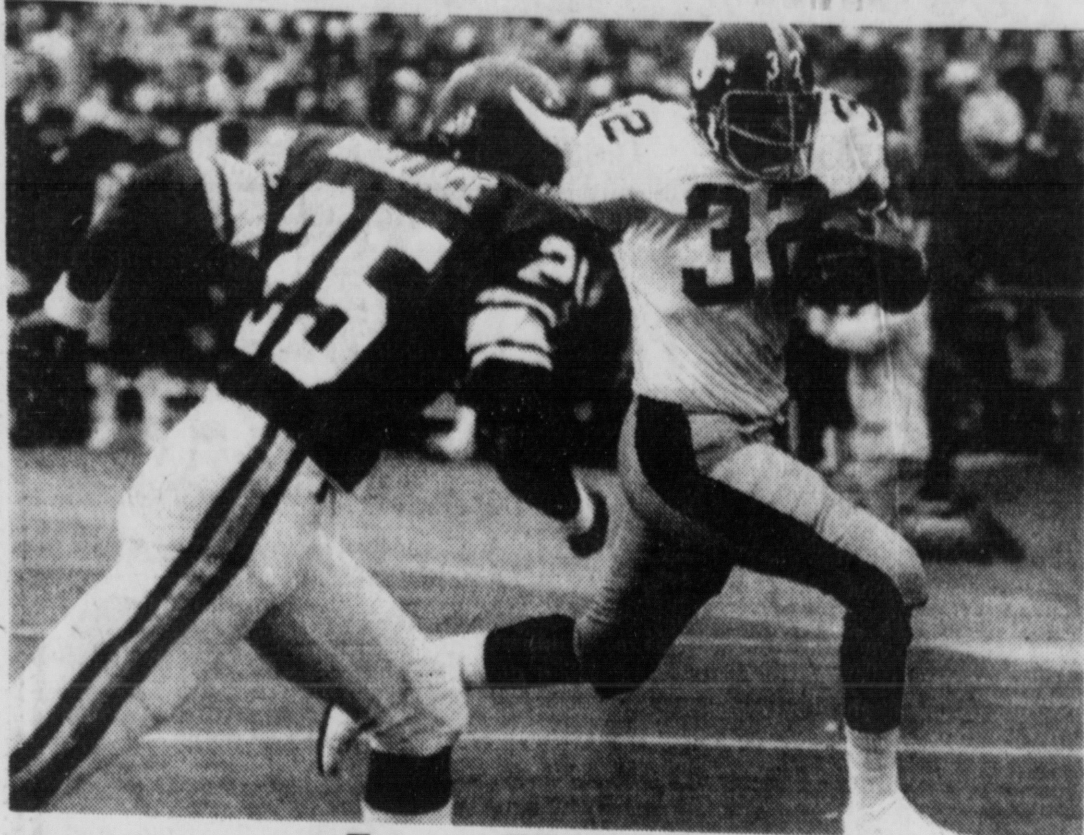

Harris' touchdown increased the Steelers' lead to 9-0 but the Vikings, who entered the game as 3½ point underdogs, kept their fans' betting hopes alive when Terry Brown recovered a blocked Pittsburgh punt in the end zone to account for Minnesota's only points. Fred Cox missed on the extra point attempt when his kick struck the left upright and bounced back.

There was still a little over 10 minutes left to play but the Steelers came right back and marched 66 yards in 12 plays for the deciding touchdown that came on a four-yard pass from Terry Bradshaw to Larry Brown. The big play of the drive was a 30-yard pass from Bradshaw to Brown on which the Steeler tight end apparently fumbled the ball away to a Viking after getting hit. However, the officials ruled the play was dead before the fumble.

"From our vantage point, Brown had not reached the ground when the ball came loose," said Viking coach Bud Grant who became the first coach to lose three Super Bowl games. "Our bench reacted immediately — there wasn't any question in their mind it was a fumble."

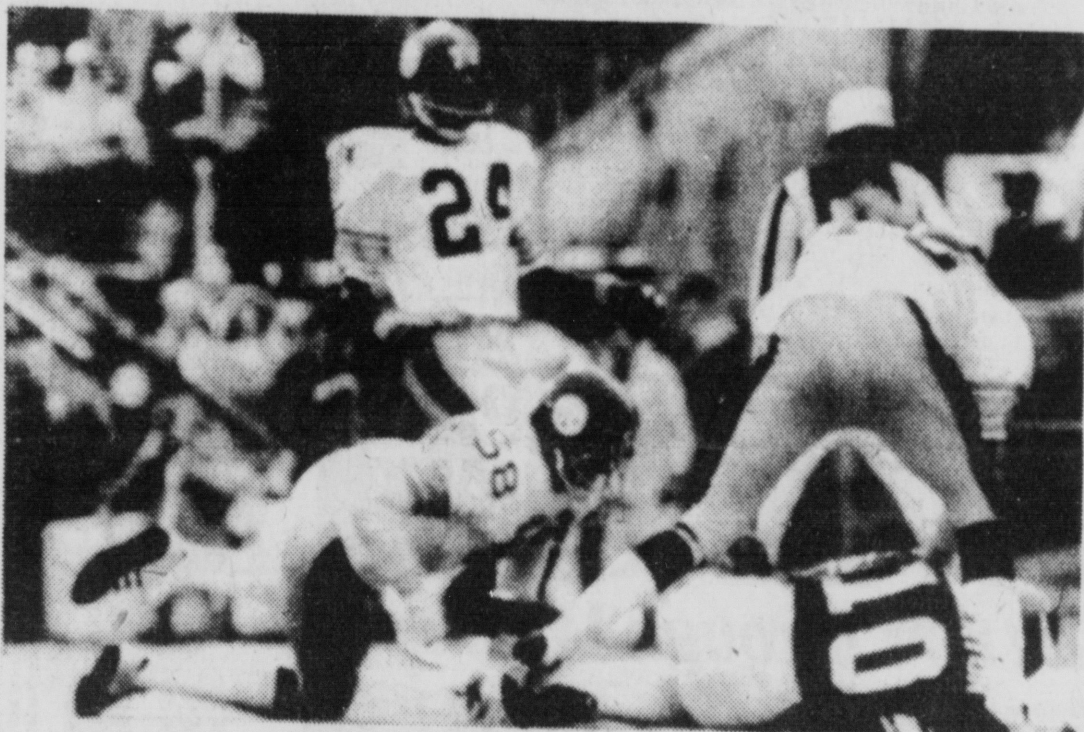

"The official who called it was across the field and behind him and the official who ruled it our ball was in front of the play. When they didn't give it to us, it became a very big play — bigger than any we could make."

"It wasn't a very good football game," Grant continued. "There were enough chances for both teams to win a number of times with all the penalties, interceptions and official fumbles."

Franco Flies Across

Pittsburgh Steelers' Franco Harris (32) outruns the Vikings' Jackie Wallace to the corner and scores a touchdown to give Pittsburgh a 9-0 third period lead in Super Bowl IX Sunday. (UPI)

Francis Is Embarrassed

Standing over quarterback Fran Tarkenton (10) who has just recovered loose ball in end zone, Pittsburgh's Dwight White "touches" the Viking leader to assure a two point safety, the first safety ever in Super Bowl history. Other Steeler about to land on Tarkenton is linebacker Jack Lambert (58). J. T. Thomas (24) is in background. (UPI)

From Bud Grant

An Official Blast

By JOHN D. GONZALES

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings and Pittsburgh Steelers each made errors in Super Bowl IX, but Viking coach Bud Grant said the ones the officials made may have cost his team the ball game.

"There were enough chances for both teams to win a number of times with all the penalties, interceptions and officials' fumbles," said Grant. "It wasn't a very good football game. Neither team got here playing that type of football."

The Vikings, who fell 16-6 Sunday to the Steelers, had three Fran Tarkenton passes picked off and lost two fumbles.

But it was a call on an apparent Steeler fumble that Grant feels was the crucial point in the contest at cold, damp and windy Tulane Stadium.

The controversial play came in the Steelers' final sevenminute TD drive that covered 66 yards in 11 plays, with Larry Brown taking a four-yard pass from Terry Bradshaw to give Pittsburgh its final margin on Roy Gerela's PAT.

On the third play of the drive, Bradshaw hit Brown with a 30-yard completion that moved the ball to the Minnesota 28. Brown fumbled and the Vikings recovered, but the play was ruled dead before the fumble.

"From our vantage point, Brown had not reached the ground when the ball came loose," Grant said. "Our bench reacted immediately. There wasn't any question in their mind it was a fumble, but the officials ruled the ball dead."

"But that's the way the game went. It was just a succession of errors by all three teams."

The officials had no comment on Grant's remark after the game.

"Our feeling was there was no question that he (Brown) was not down," Grant said. "The official who called it was across the field behind him and the official who ruled it our ball was in front of the play. When they didn't give it to us, it became a very big play — bigger than any we could make."

Minnesota cornerback Jackie Wallace, who made the hit on Brown that caused the apparent fumble, agreed with Grant that the play was the turning point in the game.

"That was definitely the turning point in the game," said Wallace, who knocked down two passes in the first half, one of which saved an apparent touchdown pass to Jon Stallworth at the goal line.

Wallace, who often stopped Steelers running back Franco Harris from even bigger gains, said the bruising 230-pounder runs as hard as any back he's faced.

"He's big, strong and fast and, to me, he likes to be hit for some reason," said Wallace of Harris, who now holds the Super Bowl rushing record of 158 yards.

Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton, said to have a sore arm during practice prior to the title showdown, didn't look for excuses.

"My arm is okay...no better or no worse than it has been most of the season," said Tarkenton, who completed 11 of 27 passes for 102 yards. "And no one gave me a hit that bothered my arm at all."

He said he was not downcast at seeing the Vikings fall in the Super Bowl for the second straight year. Miami beat the Vikings in Super Bowl VIII.

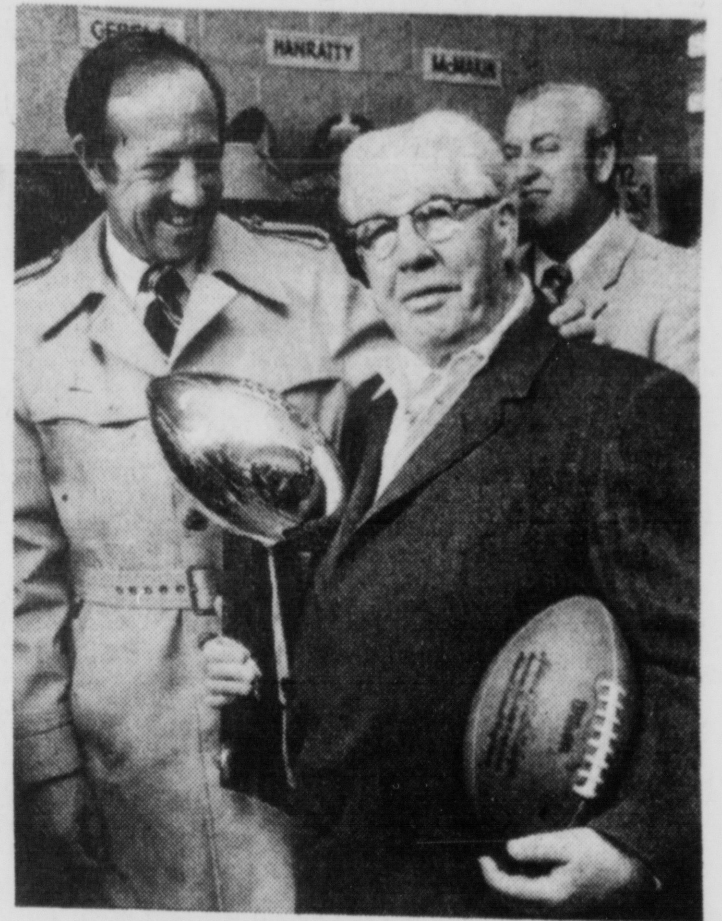

"I'm very happy, very satisfied," he said. "We had a great season and much to be proud of. We have done better than 24 other teams in pro football. It's been a great year."

He said it didn't bother him to hear people say the Vikings haven't been able to win the "big one."

"It's good to get in the position where they can knock you," Tarkenton said. "If I had my choice of getting here and losing and not getting here, I would choose to get here and lose."

Running back Chuck Foreman, one of the Vikings' primary receivers, said the Pittsburgh aggressiveness made the difference.

"I thought they were very aggressive and didn't make mistakes. They were stopping things we were supposed to do and when that happens to you, you lose," Foreman said.

Culmination of a Dream

Art Rooney's Reaction: 'I'm Not a Bit Surprised'

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — One by one the victorious Pittsburgh Steelers wanted to talk about the same thing Sunday. They wanted to say how happy they were for Art Rooney.

It is Rooney, of course, who has put up with legendary trials during his 42 non-championship years as owner of the Steelers. And it was Rooney who received the warmest handshakes on a bitterly cold afternoon.

"That's the greatest man who ever walked," said Terry Bradshaw of Rooney moments after Pittsburgh's 16-6 win over Minnesota. "Winning this for him was the big thing. He's the kind of man who'll get all of those old boxing buddies of his together for a party now and he'll let them take that beautiful trophy out to the back alley and admire it."

"Winning this for him is the biggest thrill of all. My dad told Mr. Rooney when the Steelers signed me that in five years we'd be in the Super Bowl. I didn't believe in stuff like that myself, but here we are."

Rooney himself was almost unbelievably calm after his team finally presented him with a league championship, two weeks short of his 74th birthday.

"I try never to get too excited and I try not to get depressed," Rooney said. "But after having lived with these players all year, I'm not a bit surprised. They are a great bunch."

Rooney left his seat in the stadium during the fourth quarter with his team leading, 9-0. But, as he was making his way through the stands, Minnesota started to make it 9-6.

He walked into the press tent beneath the stadium just as Bradshaw hit Larry Brown with the touchdown pass that clinched the game.

"I was afraid I was making this walk down here for nothing," Rooney said. "But that touchdown sure made me feel a lot better."

"Our people were so confident they could win. If we had lost, that trip back home would have been disastrous."

Rooney made his way to the Pittsburgh dressing room just before the end of the game, removed his checkered cap, combed his hair and waited to be presented with the Super Bowl trophy from Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"I'm grateful to the players and to Coach Noll," Rooney said in his acceptance speech. "This is a great day personally and a great day for Pittsburgh."

In the Steelers' dressing room, accolades for Rooney were collected from all sides, and they were summed up best by guard Gerry Mullins.

"When you talk about dedication, this entire team dedicated this effort to Mr. Rooney. Everybody in this room is happy for him. He's just a tremendous gentleman," Mullins said.

On Seventh Day Dwight White Did Not Rest

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — For six days, this week, Dwight White lay in a hospital bed, wondering if he would play in his first Super Bowl.

On Sunday, White not only played, but played brilliantly, as he helped a Pittsburgh Steelers defensive line hold the Minnesota Vikings to just 17 yards rushing in a 16-6 Super Bowl victory.

"I was disappointed," White said. "I wanted very badly to be in this game. I got out of the hospital yesterday (Saturday) and I felt I could play. I just didn't know how long or how effective."

The Vikings tested White early and he responded, turning back everything that came his way.

"It was the coaches' and the doctors' decision," White said about his availability. "I didn't know until after the warmup what they were going to do. Coach Noll came over and put his hand on my forehead and told me I was starting."

White was hospitalized last Sunday night when he suffered back and chest pains after dinner. At first it was thought that it was a chronic back condition, but later White said the doctors told him he had viral pneumonia.

"I felt so bad early in the week," he said. "It was hard enough just walking around, much less playing football. I came into the game weighing 237 pounds and I usually run around 255."

White was superb in the first half, helping throw Viking quarterback Fran Tarkenton for a safety, the only points scored in the half.

"I just charged in and saw the ball rolling toward the end zone," White said about the safety. "I saw Fran fall on it and I just put my hand on him. I know enough not to get carried away in that situation."

White admitted he was having problems at the half, but a freak play helped him regain his wind.

"I was really whipped at the half," he said. "I hadn't done anything all week and I just felt so sluggish. Usually you feel sluggish if you put on weight but I just felt awful, I was really sucking it in."

"Usually the referee comes in and tells you when there are five minutes left in the half. I was just dreading seeing him come through the door. I knew we had to kick off to them and that we'd be on the field right away. I wasn't looking forward to it."

White was given a little bit of respite when Roy Gerela slipped while kicking off, squibbing the kick, and Bill Brown bobbled the ball. Pittsburgh's Marv Kellum recovered on the Minnesota 30. Franco Harris capped a drive with a nine-yard touchdown run for a 9-0 Steelers' lead.

"Dwight was typical of our team," Noll said. "He was hurting but he wanted it so bad he went out and did a fantastic job."

"He could be back in the hospital tomorrow."

White said, "It was just great out there today. Before the game, I told a few of the guys I missed the Super Bowl so I might as well just make the game. I remember saying to myself at the half, 'Dwight, how long can you keep this up?' and thankfully, we got the break."

"We beat a fine football team today. We played good, sound football, just like a championship team."

"After all, that's what we are."

In Pittsburgh Police Prepared for Worst

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In the wake of Sunday night's sometimes violent celebration of the Pittsburgh Steelers' Super Bowl triumph, police prepared to close off the city's downtown section today in anticipation of a victory parade expected to draw more than 300,000 fans.

"We're preparing for the worst," a police spokesman said. "We had no idea how bad it could get," he said, referring to Sunday's riotous celebration, which began peacefully, but turned ugly when police bore down on a crowd which stopped a transit bus.

About 60 persons were injured, including two police officers, and 250 more were arrested, police said. Most of the charges were for disorderly conduct and intoxication.

None of the injuries were serious.

A National Weather Service forecast of from six to 12 inches of snow by mid-morning promised to keep many celebrants indoors.

But many businesses are dismissing employees at 1 p. m., the courts have cancelled sessions and public school students will be permitted to leave class early if they have written parental permission.

The parade to officially celebrate the Steelers' 16-6 victory over the Minnesota Vikings for their first National Football League title begins at approximately 2 p. m., when Mayor Pete Flaherty and a host of other local government leaders greet the Steelers' plane at Pittsburgh International Airport.

The two police officers were injured in encounters with youths, who began hurling beer bottles and cans when officers tried to disperse the crowd and close off the city.

One officer received a facial laceration when he attempted to arrest a youth who opened a fire hydrant. Observers said he officer was thrown to the ground in front of the gushing hydrant and was kicked by several persons when he was cut off from other police by the crowd. The officer was found lying in a pool of water "and could have drowned," police said.

The crowd of nearly 11,000 persons was dispersed by about 500 police around 10 p. m., about three hours after the game's conclusion.

"It is worse than we had anticipated," City Police Superintendent Robert Colville said.

"There are a lot of teenagers down here who got their hands on some alcohol." Police closed off main artery exits and secured most street corners in the downtown after riot-garbed officers swept through Liberty Avenue, center of the disturbance.

Colville said he decided to close off the area "when it became apparent that people's lives were endangered."

He cited as an example the stopping of a bus in the Market Square area while more than 40 men piled on top. Colville said there was concern that the bus might tip over, causing injury to passengers inside.

Spartans Benefit From the Incident

By UPI

"The incident," as Michigan State basketball Coach Gus Ganakas calls last week's walkout by 10 black players, is over and the success of the Spartans this season will be judged by their ability to bury the hatchet.

"So far, the hatchet has been buried and the Spartans are looking mighty successful." Ganakas substituted freely Saturday, getting 18 points from his reserves, and Michigan State rolled to a surprisingly easy 86-78 victory Saturday over No. 11 ranked Michigan—the second straight win for the Spartans since the walkout and ensuing suspensions Jan. 4.

"I think this was the best we've played this season both offensively and defensively," Ganakas said after the win over Michigan. "It was so vital for us to win this game because of the incident last weekend."

"People don't realize parties can come together after a fight and work harmoniously."

The walkout occurred prior to a game with Indiana in a dispute with Ganakas over the starting lineup. Ganakas wanted to start freshman Jeff Trost, the team's only available white player, at a forward spot opposite all-American candidate Steve Green. The players exited the meeting, were suspended, and the Ganakas-coached junior varsity team along with Trost was whipped by the nation's top-ranked team, 107-55.

The blacks apologized the following day and were reinstated in time to beat Ohio State Monday, 88-84.

Saturday, nine players figured in the scoring as the Spartans set a school record with a 64 per cent field goal pace from the field. Ganakas used guards Benny White and Bob Chapman off his bench as well as forward Edgar Wilson—and there was no lack of cohesion.

Elsewhere, top-ranked Indiana embarrassed Iowa 102-49, second-ranked UCLA beat Washington State 77-69, fourth-ranked Louisville downed 20th-ranked New Mexico State 82-69, fifth-ranked USC edged Washington 89-87, sixth-ranked Maryland beat 19th-ranked Wake Forest 89-73, seventh-ranked Oregon was upset by California 60-58, eighth-ranked Alabama scored an 86-71 victory over Mississippi State, ninth-ranked Kentucky was upset by unranked Auburn 90-85 and 10th-ranked Arizona State nipped Utah 96-93.

Third-ranked North Carolina State was idle.

Indiana raced to a 32-9 lead in the opening minutes while Quinn Buckner scored 13 of his 16 points. By halftime, Iowa had committed 19 turnovers, 11 of them on steals by Indiana, and the Hoosiers led 43-18.

Leading 53-24 after a couple more minutes, Indiana then ran off 26 straight points, built a lead as high as 57 points at 10:04 and rang up a 53-point victory, 102-49, to insure that no one meddles with its first place ranking this week.

All 15 Hoosiers scored in the rout, including 16 points by Kent Benson and 10 each by Scott May and Steve Green.

The victory tied an Indiana record for most consecutive wins, 17, set by the 1953-54 NCAA championship club. The Hoosiers are now 14-0 this season.

Ralph Drollinger and Dave Meyers scored 17 points apiece as UCLA ran its home win streak to 75 games in a Pacific-8 contest against Washington State. Marques Johnson hit 15 points and Richard Washington and Pete Trgovich added 12 each as the Bruins pushed their season mark to 12-0 and their conference record to 2-0.

Washington State 6-11 center Steve Puidokas led all scorers with 19 and Ron Davis had 11 for the Cougars. Nelson Barnill added 10 points. Puidokas, who entered the game with a 24.8 scoring average, was held to six points in the first half by the 7-1 Drollinger. Drollinger matched Puidokas in rebounds with 10.

Allen Murphy scored 22 points to pace Louisville to its 11th straight victory, at the expense of New Mexico State. The Cardinals took the lead to stay a few minutes into the game, held a 39-29 margin at the half and never let the Aggies any closer than 10 points during the second period. Murphy got scoring help from Junior Bridgeman with 16 and Wesley Cox with 15, while Cardinal Bill Bunton led all rebounders with 14.

In other games, 14th-ranked Marquette beat Manhattan 66-62, Illinois downed Northwestern 64-60, Purdue routed Wisconsin 88-49, Vanderbilt beat Louisiana State 91-82, Davidson edged St. John's 81-77, Tennessee ripped Mississippi 102-82 and Penn dumped Dartmouth 108-77.

Celebrating A Win

Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi (C) celebrates after winning the 1975 Argentine Grand Prix with Britain's James Hunt (L) who was second and Argentina's Carlos Reutemann who placed third. Fittipaldi, world champion Formula One driver in 1972 and 1974, won this season's first race in a McLaren M23. (UPI)

Fittipaldi First

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi, reassured that his brother Wilson had emerged unhurt from a fiery crash, roared to victory Sunday in the Argentine Grand Prix, opening race of the 1975 Formula One season.

Fittipaldi shoved his McLaren M23 into the lead on the 35th lap of the 53-lap race at the Buenos Aires Autodrome when Britain's James Hunt spun out in his Hesketh S308 on a curve.

The Brazilian kept a tight grip on the lead for the rest of the race, finishing nearly six seconds in front of Hunt, who was followed by Argentina's Carlos Reutemann, the wildly cheered local favorite, in a Brabham BT44.

Fittipaldi, Formula one world champion in 1972 and 1974, averaged 118.525 miles per hour around the 5,968-meter track.

The victory gave Fittipaldi nine points toward another racing championship. Hunt picked up six points for his second-place finish and Reutemann four in third place.

They were followed by Gianclaudio "Clay" Regazzoni of Switzerland in fourth place in a Ferrari 312B (three points); Patrick Depailler of France, fifth place in a Tyrrell Ford (two points); and Niki Lauda of Austria, sixth place in a Ferrari 312B (one point).

The closest thing to a tragic accident occurred in the 13th lap when Wilson Fittipaldi lost control of his new Brazilian-made Copersucar Fitti-1 and smashed into a guardrail. Fittipaldi leaped out as the car burst into flames, spewing thick black smoke until firemen doused it with foam.

Wilson Fittipaldi, who was unhurt, made his way back to the area of the boxes, where he leaned over the railing and gave brother Emerson a thumbs-up sign on his next pass. It was the maiden race for the Copersucar, which was too badly damaged to run in the next Formula one event. The Interlagos Grand Prix at Sao Paulo Jan. 26. Wilson Fittipaldi said another car of the same design, the Fitti-2, would be ready for the race, however.

Hard-luck driver of the event was France's Jean Pierre Jarier, a daring driver who won the pole position in two days of time trials but was unable to start when a broken gearbox kept his UOP Shadow out of the lineup at the last minute.

Argentina's Reutemann jumped into the early lead, which he held 24 laps before suspension problems slowed him down and Hunt took over the lead.

Hunt had the day's fastest lap time, a track record of 1:50.91 on the 34th lap, just before spinning out and losing the lead to Emerson Fittipaldi. The race was run in 80-degree weather under partly cloudy skies.

Chris Bombs Billie

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Chris Evert knows better than to let up against veteran Billie Jean King.

She didn't and her 6-1, 6-1, victory in the finals of the $75,000 Virginia Slims Indoor Tennis Tournament was the second worst beating Mrs. King had ever suffered in her pro career.

"I just wanted to guard against letting up," Miss Evert explained after the match Saturday night. "That's why I like beating Billie Jean better than anybody. She's a fighter, really a gutsy competitor. She is so much more competitive than most of the girls it means more to beat her. Besides, she's still No. 1 in a lot of people's minds."

Most of the 9,000 plus Civic Auditorium spectators would hardly be among them. They saw a younger player far too quick and accurate for Mrs. King, whose strategy of drop shots and looping top-spin returns failed to pay off.

"She beat my 'bazongas' off that's all," said the one-time queen of the women's tour, whose game went stale with 37 unforced errors.

"Billie Jean's a great athlete but she hasn't been working on tennis," said Miss Evert. "Normally, she gives me a lot of those chops and junk but she was off with it tonight. She needs more practice time."

The match lasted just 55 minutes and the setback for Mrs. King was eclipsed only by her loss to Miss Evert two years ago in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

The pair teamed up after the match for a doubles victory over Rosemary Casals and Virginia Wade, 6-2, 7-5.

A split of the $4,500 doubles check raised Miss Evert's winnings to $17,225 for the week, including the $10,000 for her singles triumph. Mrs. King finished with $10,725 and third place singles money of $4,600 went to Miss Wade of London, who defeated Martina Navratilova in a single set, 6-4.

Cramer Quits As U.S. Coach

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Detmar Cramer will quit as coach of the U.S. national soccer team to become coach of the West German soccer club, F. C. Bayern of Munich, the club's manager announced today.

Cramer will take the new job Jan. 20 under a three-year contract, Manager Robert Schwan said. His salary was not disclosed.

Cramer is in Israel with the American team for training at the Wingate Institute. Schwan said Cramer, 49, will return to the United States before going to Munich.

The $4,975 Question.

Q In times like these, can you reasonably expect to get $4975 worth of car for $4975? Well, let's fact.

First, the Audi 100LS hasn't risen one dollar in price this year. That puts you way ahead right there.

Second, the Germans build the Audi to last. Planned obsolescence just isn't compatible with their thinking.

Third, consider the built-in luxuries: the comfort of legroom and headroom equal to some cars twice the price. And orthopedically-designed reclining seats.

Fourth, it's the only luxury car combining front-wheel drive, torsion crank rear axle, rack-and-pinion steering, and front disc brakes. It handles superbly.

Fifth, on top of everything else, it gets about 24 miles to the gallon.*

True, it's hard to find full value in any product today. But this isn't just any product, it's the Audi 100LS: $4975* worth of luxury car, without question.

*Suggested retail price East Coast P.O.E. West Coast slightly higher. Local taxes and other dealer delivery charges, if any, additional.
*Mileage based on German Industry Standard DIN 70030.

$400 Grant For Bard

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON

Grants totaling more than $113,000 will be distributed to 90 privately supported colleges and universities in New York by the Sears, Roebuck Foundation, a spokesman reports.

In the Kingston area, Bard College will receive grants totaling $400.

The New York colleges and universities are among almost 1,000 private accredited two- and four-year institutions across the country which are sharing in $1.3 million in Sears Foundation funds for the 1974-75 academic year. Funds may be used unrestrictedly as the colleges and universities deem necessary.

In addition to its unrestricted grant program, the Sears Roebuck Foundation each year conducts a variety of special-purpose programs in elementary, secondary, higher and continuing education. Altogether, the foundation had expenditures of almost $2.75 million in 1974 for its education activities.

Koenig Proclaims King Day

'Routine Tests' For Betty Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford went to Bethesda Naval Medical Center today for her first "post-operative evaluation" since her surgery for breast cancer Sept. 28. Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, the first lady's press secretary, said that Mrs. Ford had gone to the hospital for "routine tests" and would be having similar checkups every four months.

Mrs. Ford, described by Mrs. Weidenfeld as "feeling fine," was accompanied by Dr. William Lukash, the White House physician.

She will be examined by Dr. William Fouty, the chief surgeon at the medical center who performed the operation on Mrs. Ford when a lump in her breast was found to be cancerous.

"This is strictly routine," said Mrs. Weidenfeld.

Mrs. Ford, who arrived at the hospital at around 9 a.m., was scheduled to remain about four hours for the medical examination.

The first lady has been undergoing chemotherapy treatments to prevent the spread of cancer, taking them every five weeks. Lukash said they would be continued indefinitely.

Mrs. Ford has been getting her affairs in order and keeping a low-key schedule since she arrived back at the White House.

Charged With DWI

KINGSTON

The third auto accident in less than a week at an excavation site on Broadway near Van Buren Street resulted in a driving while intoxicated charge against Richard B. Mathews, 33, of RD 5, Box 161, Kingston, early today.

City police said Mathews drove his car through a barricade and into a hole left by sewer excavations.

Mathews was treated and released at Benedictine Hospital following the 12:12 a.m. crash. His car was towed from the scene.

Less than two hours earlier another auto struck the barricade. That mishap resulted in no injuries and no summonses. Last week another city man was charged with driving while intoxicated after he struck the barricade.

New School Hearing Set

KINGSTON

The Kingston City Schools Consolidated Board of Education will hold a public informational meeting on the proposed new high school at Lake Katrine Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Kingston High School auditorium.

The meeting will be the first dissemination of detailed information about the new high school. Board Member James T. Owens, who heads the board's building committee, said at the last meeting of the board that the primary purpose of the meeting will be to inform the public, although there will be a question and answer period at the end of the presentation.

Lending Rate Cut By Morgan

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Morgan Guaranty Bank of New York today cut its prime interest rate to 9 1/4 per cent — the lowest prime of any major U.S. bank since last April.

Morgan cut its rate a half-percentage point from 10 1/4 per cent effective immediately.

Several other major banks, including Chase Manhattan of New York, today followed the lead of other banks and lowered their prime rate to 10 per cent from 10 1/4 per cent.

The trend to lower business loan rates began Friday when commercial banks, including the Bank of America and First National City Bank, the nation's two largest, responded to efforts by the Federal Reserve banks to make more credit available at cheaper rates.

In the last two weeks, the Fed has been easing monetary policy to battle the recession. Easier credit for corporations makes more money available for expansion and new jobs.

No major bank has set a prime rate below 10 per cent since last April when the Fed restricted money supplies and made interest rates high to control inflation. The rate increased steadily, reaching a historic high of 12 per cent.

Memoriam

In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Edna Newell, who passed away January 13, 1974. The depths of sorrow we cannot tell. Of the loss of one we loved so well. And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep. Her memory we shall always keep. Sons

Power Outage

Some 1,700 Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. customers in the Stone Ridge area were without power for about two hours today, apparently due to an electric line failure that affected circuit breakers at the High Falls substation. The interruption began at about 8 a.m. today.

Correction

An ad in the Sunday Freeman stated that the Yoga for Life Institute would conduct classes commencing Jan. 30. The correct date for the new class to begin is Jan. 20.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL CONSERVATION

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PERMIT TO DISCHARGE UNDER PROVISIONS OF NEW YORK STATE POLLUTION DISCHARGE ELIMINATION SYSTEM ACT.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to Titles 7 & 8 of Article 17 of the Environmental Conservation Law of New York State for the administration of and the issuance of permits under said Law, Hudson Valley Water Co., Inc., a corporation organized under the laws of New York State, has filed a permit application with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation at its office at 50 Wolf Road, Albany, New York, 12201, where the application and related documents are available for public inspection.

The applicant proposed to discharge treated process water into the groundwaters of a subsurface disposal system from their facility located along Glasco Turnpike, Saugerties (T), Ulster County, at which facility the applicant operates a water treatment plant. This is an existing discharge.

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation tentatively intends to issue a State Pollution Discharge Elimination System (SPDES) Permit for the subject discharge (s). A final issuance will follow: (1) review of the application to assure compliance with all applicable provisions of Article 17 of the Environmental Conservation Law of New York State and all applicable provisions of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 (P.L. 92-500); (2) development of special conditions setting forth specific effluent limitations and other controls applicable to the discharge (s) described above including schedules of compliance; (3) development of monitoring and reporting requirements for the applicant's performance; (4) consideration of all written comments from persons who qualify, as described below, as interested parties to this notice of application.

Any person interested in this application who wishes to comment thereon or become an interested party in any proceeding regarding this application must notify the undersigned in writing stating specific areas of interest on or before February 17, 1975.

All such written comments will be retained by the Department and considered in the formulation of the final determination. Any such interested party will be eligible to be heard if a public hearing is ultimately held in connection with this application.

Further information may be obtained from the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, Division of Pure Waters, Room 201, 50 Wolf Road, Albany, New York 12201, 457-5151.

NOTICE OF SALE
In pursuance of a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date of the 8th day of January, 1975, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said Judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front steps of the Ulster County Courthouse, 285 Wall Street, Kingston, Ulster County, New York, on the 11th day of February, 1975, at 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon, (Eastern Standard Time) of that day, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and thereon described as follows:

ALL THAT CERTAIN PLOT, PIECE OR PARCEL OF LAND, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the Town of Esopus, Ulster County, New York, being part of lot number nine (9) North, division of the three mile or river lots in the New Palitz Patent, bounded as follows:

BEGINNING at an iron pipe on the easterly side of New York State Highway Rt. No. 9-W, said point being the northwesterly corner of lands of now or formerly of Dumont and running thence along the easterly side of said State Highway, North 1°06' East 206.97 feet to an iron spike; thence still along said highway, North 5°00' East 93.03 feet to an iron pipe; thence along other lands of Leo Wetter, South 85°00' East 148.00 feet to an iron pipe on the westerly right of way of the West Shore Railroad Company; thence along the westerly right of way line of the Railroad Co., South 2°15' East 338.50 feet to a stake in a stone wall on the now or formerly of Dumont; thence along said stone wall, North 73°24' West 180.33 feet to the place of beginning. Containing 12.20 acres, be the same more or less.

SUBJECT to covenants, restrictions and reservations contained in former deeds of record.

SUBJECT to the zoning ordinances of the town or village in which the premises are located.

SUBJECT to any state of facts an accurate survey may show.

BEING the same premises as described in a deed dated June 21, 1968 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office June 24, 1968 in Liber 1213 at page 1106, from Paul Balt to R. F. Samitsch, Inc.

The sale of the above premises is to be made subject to any and all taxes, tax sales, assessments, water and sewer rates due, if any, whether or not the same shall be paid or current and to any amounts due on any prior mortgage, interest, costs or any other item of expense in connection therewith, and to any state of facts that an accurate survey may show, covenants and restrictions of record.

President Backs Kissinger's Views on Oil Situation

By United Press International

President Ford has personally backed up Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, saying the United States might use force if the industrial world were strangled—"just about on your back"—for want of oil, but not just to lower prices.

Ford gave an interview to Time magazine this week and was asked if he supported the views of Kissinger in a recent Business Week, in which Kissinger said although "massive political warfare" would be the only thing that could get the Arabs lower their prices, the United States would not take that course. However, he did not rule out the use of force if the world were "strangled" for oil.

"I stand by the view that Henry Kissinger expressed in Business Week," Ford told Time. "The word 'strangulation' is the key word. If you read his answer to a very hypothetical question, we didn't say force would be used to bring a price change.

"His language said he wouldn't rule force out if the free world or the industrialized world would be strangled. I would reaffirm my support of that position as he answered the hypothetical question."

Ford was asked to define strangulation. "If you translate it into the terms of a human being," he said, "it means that you are just about on your back."

In Brussels, Joseph Luns, secretary general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, joined Ford during the week-end, saying any nation faced with strangulation is likely to use force, although European nations are working to keep the energy problem under control.

"I would say any nation, faced with strangulation, is likely to consider the use of force," Luns, who is Dutch, said Sunday. "It has rarely been in history that a country accepts being strangled without taking some counter-measures."

Luns suggested that Western self-help attempts—like the proposals for "consumer solidarity"—might keep the energy problem controlled. "I do not have the impression that the Arab states are contemplating something which might in fact strangle the economies of Western Europe or of North America."

A warning came from the Vatican. Without mentioning names, Pope Paul VI said Saturday that the world situation "appears to be gradually deteriorating," that the great powers might be swept into conflicts.

"We are thinking here of the Middle East, about which we have had to speak so often and about which we must speak again, and of the new and more threatening complications caused by the so-called war of energy sources," the Pope said.

Arab newspapers—often mirrors of official opinion—also had continuing responses during the weekend to Kissinger's statements.

—A Beirut weekly, Middle East Economic Survey, said that oil producers would give "assurances that adequate supplies of oil will be forthcoming at reasonably predictable prices" if the United States abandons its "policy of confrontation." The result of intervention, it said, "could only be to exacerbate the disease it was designed to cure—lack of oil."

—The Egyptian paper Al Akhbar said if the United States wants to prevent another oil embargo it should put pressure on Israel. "Arabs," the paper said, "insist on using all their weapons when necessary in the confrontation of their destiny against Zionist colonialism and no power on Earth could stop them from doing that."

—The Kuwaiti newspaper As Siyassa quoted the foreign minister of the United Arab Emirates, Ahmad Khalifa al Suwedi as rejecting the possibility of intervention. "We rule out such action by the United States," he said.

U.S. Planes in Emergency Phnom Penh Airlift

PHNOM PENH (UPI) —

Government sources said today U.S. planes have begun an airlift to Phnom Penh to resupply the isolated Cambodian capital with military equipment.

Military sources said the Cambodian high command asked for the emergency airlift after pro-Communist rebel forces cut the Mekong River lifeline at the beginning of their current offensive New Year's Eve.

The United States agreed to meet the Phnom Penh request last Saturday, the sources said, and since then U.S. Air Force C-130s, piloted by American civilians, have made eight or nine flights to Phnom Penh daily carrying arms and ammunition.

The flights have carried no food because Phnom Penh has enough rice and other food stockpiled to last through a onemonth siege, the sources said.

Rebel forces Sunday overran a string of government positions along the Mekong and threatened the river town of Neak Luong, 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, military sources said.

The town's fall would permanently cut the capital's main supply line, the sources said.

In South Vietnam, a Saigon military spokesman said Armor-led Communist infantry tried to overrun a militia outpost west of Saigon today, but they were repulsed by government warplanes and artillery.

The South Vietnamese command said the warplanes destroyed five Communist armored personnel carriers and killed at least 55 attackers in fighting at the base one mile south of the Cambodian frontier and 58 miles west of Saigon.

In Saigon, a high-ranking American source said Sunday U.S. aircraft have been making regular reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam and Viet Cong-territory in South Vietnam in violation of the 1973 truce agreement.

A 1,000-man South Vietnamese task force battled its way into the county capital of Hoai Duc, 60 miles northeast of Saigon, Sunday to break a month-long Communist encirclement.

In Phnom Penh, military sources said the pro-Communist Khmer Rouge insurgents captured a series of government outposts ringing Neak Luong during the past week, bringing the town under siege.

The sources said the guerrillas have been shelling the town daily for the past two weeks with about 500 artillery rounds hitting Neak Luong each day since last Saturday.

Refugees managing to flee the town by helicopter Sunday said the U.S.-built hospital at Neak Luong is packed with wounded. They said government casualties are running at more than 30 dead a day.

The refugees reported 400 wounded in the beds and corridors of the hospital, rebuilt by the United States after a misdirected B52 strike devastated Neak Luong in 1973. It has a capacity of 100.

Officers in Phnom Penh said helicopter rescue flights into Neak Luong have become dangerous, with rebel forces opening fire on every chopper landing in the town.

The insurgents have already cut all the capital's supply roads. Phnom Penh's only other source of supplies is Pochentong Airport.

In Saigon, a high-ranking American source said U.S. aircraft have been making reconnaissance flights over Indochina to let the Communists know Washington still supports the Saigon government.

Israelis Cross Border

By UPI

Israeli artillery, armor, and commandos struck across the border into southern Lebanon today and fought fierce battles with Lebanese soldiers and Palestinian guerrillas for the third straight day, a guerrilla spokesman in Beirut said.

Israeli warplanes made highflying passes over Beirut, sending sonic booms rumbling across the capital, witnesses said.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said Israeli gunners hit several southern villages with heavy artillery fire during the night while a ground task force crossed the border to blow up five houses in the villages of Halta and Chouba, one mile inside Lebanon.

In Tel Aviv, the military command said its troops raided the city of Chouba and shot several guerrillas but did not know whether any were killed. The raiders charged a house where guerrillas were firing and blew it up, the command said.

The Lebanese defense ministry said a heavy Israeli artillery barrage began at 5 p.m. Sunday night and continued throughout the night, injuring at least two women and damaging 20 houses in four villages.

"The enemy used its artillery fire to cover its infiltration to the village of Kfar Chouba, where he blew up four houses, and the village of Halta, where he blew up one house," the defense ministry said.

The Tel Aviv military command said the Israelis blew up four houses in Halta believed used by guerrillas.
